THESE ARE THE PEOPLE IN YOUR NEIGHBORHOOD

I am your LOHA Secretary, Carolyn Bree. Since I just returned from a 21-day trip to San Francisco, Australia and New Zealand I thought that I'd do a little travelogue. Did you know that there is a Redwood Forest near San Francisco, a 100-year old National Monument, called Muir Woods? The trees there are 100's of years old and huge. Alcatraz is an island off the coast of San Francisco. Queensland, Australia is home to the Daintree National Rainforest. Only ¼ of this rainforest remains. It was added to the World's Heritage List in 1988. Off the coast of Queensland is one of the 7 wonders of the world, the Great Barrier Reef. It is composed of over 3000 individual reef systems and stretches over 1800 miles along the coast. The Aboriginal people are indigenous to Australia. The wind instrument they play is called the didgeridoo. To play it one must blow like a baby "making raspberries." New Zealand is home to mountains and hills throughout its two long islands. The North Island is home to the Bay of Islands, the Kauri Forest, geothermal areas with geysers and sulfur mud pools, undersea volcanic activity, glowworm caves, cattle, sheep and wonderful people. The Maori people are indigenous to NZ. In Australia I swam the Great Barrier Reef and saw beautiful coral and fish. I was startled when a stingray swam right under me. I went on a night walk of the Daintree Rainforest and a boat ride on a river to see the crocodiles. I walked on a beach with coconut trees. I took a train to Kuranda and a skyrail back. In New Zealand I took a tour to the northernmost part called Cape Reinga. There I visited the Kauri Forest, rode on a bus that sped along the beach beside the Pacific Ocean and Tasman Sea & went through a creek bed. I saw where WWII American soldiers were trained for beach invasions. I slid down sand dunes and tubed through the glowworm caves in water that was 46 degrees. I walked the rim of Mt. Tarawera, a volcano & ate kangaroo, crocodile, fish & lamb.
